Database Chaos? Consider the Cloud...

Do you find yourself copying, moving, backing up, or worse losing databases? If you are a service company have you ever been in the field, many miles away from the shop, with the wrong tester or wrong database? Any company with multiple testers and multiple databases has likely found themselves comparing data and/or databases to verify which one has the latest data to make sure they don't overwrite a newer database with an older database. Additionally, this is often non-billable time spent on customers data that could be better spent somewhere else.

If you find your company plagued by these hurdles, you should look to the clouds. Cloud services offer a low cost solution to these types of database issues. Multi-site enterprise cloud-based software allows for seamless integration of multiple testers and multiple databases from anywhere, at any time.
