Dear Valued Customer:

RE: H-Series and P-Series Tester - Product Obsolescence Notice

We at PdMA Corporation value our relationship with our customers and we look forward to continuing our relationship with you in the future.

This notice is to inform you that PdMA Corporation has discontinued manufacturing new H-Series and P-Series model testers due to unavailability of electronic components, changed battery technology and MS Windows operating systems (pre-Windows 7). Our goal is to continue to provide repair and calibration service and support for the H-Series and P-Series test systems until the time when repair parts, operating system limitations, etc., prevent it.

All of our research and product development, both hardware and software, will go into our M-Series test systems.

We strive to provide the highest level of service and support to all of our customers and apologize for any inconvenience this notice may cause. We remain dedicated to meeting your future test and measurement needs.

To best serve you, please direct all inquiries and requests on this subject to our sales or technical support departments.

Sincerely,

Noah Bethel, CMRP

VP Product Development
